

Right from the start our aim at Hipping Hall has been to offer a compact, easy to follow wine list, and, above all, one that would provide the best of each style and variety of wine. Working closely with Staintons of Kendal and Bowland Forest Vintners we feel that we have compiled an exclusive list which combines classic wines with something perhaps a little different. Most importantly, our pricing policy means that we offer an unrivalled opportunity to complement fantastic food with fine wine without an outrageous price tag.

We have placed both our white and red wines into three broad categories which we hope will help you to choose the wine to suit both your palate and your food. Of course with anything as subjective as flavour there will always be room for argument, but what a great topic for discussion!

Wine and food matching has become extremely popular over the last few years - and rightly so. The 'correct' matching of flavours provides an experience greater than the sum of the parts. Feel free to ask either myself or the restaurant manager for assistance as we would welcome the opportunity to help you come to a decision. Of course, there is no reason why you should not do things in reverse! Choose your wine and then match the food accordingly!

We have also compiled a small list of half bottles at the back of the list to introduce greater flexibility when it comes to matching your wine with your meal.

Champagne has to be the perfect start to any meal. For our house Champagne, we could not resist the charms of the luxurious Louis Roederer. For those wanting to delve deeper into the house of Roederer we have their Blanc de Blancs champagne - made entirely from white grapes - and of course the chic style and enduring elegance of Cristal! Bottling 'en magnum' allows the champagne to mature more slowly producing a greater depth of flavour. The appliance of science indeed!

I hope you get as much enjoyment from sampling our wine list as we have had putting it together. Bon appétit,

Andrew Wildsmith
